NE DEPT MOTOR VEHICLES
HIGHWAY SAFETY

To: All Motor Vehicle Administrators
From: Ginny Lewis, Director
Date: August 21, 2006
Subject: Nevada Certificates Of Ownership Re-Designed

The Nevada Department of Motor Vehicles will begin issuing a redesigned Certificate of Title and Salvage Title on August 21, 2006. The redesigned title still meets all the specifications of the Universal Title; the existing security features remain the same. The significant changes reflected in the new design are:

- The size of the title has increased to 8" x 11", excluding the tear off mailing tab.
- The title will now display up to four brands.
- A barcode meeting AAMVA Standards will be printed.
- Additional lines have been added to capture the customer's Nevada Driver's License number, Identification Card number, or the FEIN.

Additionally, a new Non-Repairable Vehicle Certificate began production on July 1, 2006. The Non-Repairable Vehicle Certificate is now printed on green paper stock with a blue border.

Enclosed are examples of the new Certificate of Ownership documents. Previously issued Certificates of Ownership are still valid.

We hope you find this information useful. You may direct any questions or concerns to Carol Falk at (775) 684-4562, or email, cfalk@dmv.state.nv.us, or Bernadette Nieto-Markussen at (775) 684-4689 or email bmarkussen@dmv.state.nv.us.

Banknote Intaglio Printing
The Feel of Steel

When viewing the secure Nevada Title, the "feel of steel" is the first test of authenticity. Run your fingers over it; it is called banknote intaglio steel plate printing, the most secure printing method known. It is used on U.S. currency and other highly secure documents. The delicate three dimensional pattern comes from steel engraving that gives the printing the "feel of steel". When viewing a counterfeit, the tiny lines will be muddled and imperfect and lack the "feel of steel".

The Latent Image

The Latent Image is an additional test of authenticity; the ultimate creation of the banknote intaglio engraver's art. The horizontal lines and spaces and the ink texture of the engraving process combine to expose the hidden or latent image. The latent image takes advantage of banknote intaglio's three dimensional nature so that genuine document can be easily verified and counterfeits can be readily detected. It is really two images in one, and extremely difficult to counterfeit. The Latent Images on the enclosed certificate appear in the upper left and lower right hand corners. They read "NV" and "DMV".

How To View the Latent Image

- Face an overhead light source.
- Line up eyes directly behind the Latent Image.
- Hold document at arm's length at a twenty degree angle.
- Raise or lower document until Latent Image appears.

Alteration

On both sides of the Nevada Title background inks are used that will show attempts at altering information by the following methods:

a) Erasure
b) Alcohol based eradicators, used to alter ball point pen signatures
c) Bleach based eradicators

Fluorescence

Place the Document underneath an ultra violet light. The ink will fluoresce very brightly but the paper will not fluoresce. Any disruption of the ink patterns by attempt at alteration will be noticeable under this light.

The back text is printed in dark ink over a fine line fluorescent erasure-sensitive leach and bleach ink tint. The fine line tint will show attempts at chemical and mechanical alterations.
